seriously. / France, for example, regards the action as a violation of her 1944 Treaty with Russia: the United States' reaction/is to extend immediate recognition to Bao Dal's régime: Britain deplores the Soviet move, and finds herself in a curious position. She has recognised the new Communist-dominated Government of China, but cannot, obviously extend any status to Ho Chi-minh. The Russian recognition of Ho cannot be regarded as anything cise but a political move designed to/ embarrass. The action, in effect, firstly denies that France any longer possesses political or administrative title in Indo-China, which is manifestly incorrect. Secondly it assumes that Ho Chi-minh's regime is a government representing the people and able fully to control the country, which is equally incorrect. Peking would be entitled to regard the Soviet recognition as a subtle insult in that Moscow waited until the Kuomintang was finally driven from the Chinese mainland before extending diplomatic status to Mao Tse-tung, while with Ho Chi-minh the Kremlin has conferred upon him full recognition before he is in a position to make any practical use of it. In this case Russia has decided to give official backing to a rebel. Ho is nothing more than that. His administrative : control is still difficult

There la snother consideration: by possibly render more difficult the practical implementation of the Paris Convention whereunder Bao Dai heads a government destined, eventually, to earn for Indo-China complete independence. Moscow, quite deliberately, ignores the fact that France is not immediately surrendering to Bao Dai full control of the French colony. Bao Dai's government will operate under a number of important restrictions. For example, it will not have complete independence in foreign affairs. French sovereignty, in its advisory capacity, will continue to exist until Bao Dai'a administration has successfully emerged from its tutelage period. In this respect, therefore, Russia's recognition of Ho Chi-minh can be seen as a challenge to France's ability to maintain the Bao Dai regime in a manner that will make it effective. But its most sinister possibility is that it presages active Russian support for a southward expansion of militant Communism in Asia. In other words that both Russia and Communist China will throw military weight into the Indo-China balance to make sure that Ho Chl-minh duly commands control of sufficient territory to justify, recognition of his government as the only one physically capable of administering the country. It is this, rather than Moscow's shallow action of extending recognition to Ho at the moment, which probably worries the Qual d'Orsay, for it is inconceivable that France, still the custodian of the future. peace and prosperity of Indo-China, could stand aside and allow Communist troops from a neighbouring country to invade at will and destroy a regime with which

Large corner windows and many other single ones bring a luxurious amount of light and sunshine nto this spreading type house. On a narrower lot than the one indicated above, the breezeway and garage could be built at the rear.

TEXT to lots of closets, a woman wants lots of windows in her home. Without plenty of light, air and sunshine in the place where she spends at least half, if not three-quarters, of her life, a wife and mother is apt to find that both her physical health and her spirits begin to feel a definite let-down after a while.

Conversely, when a house is light and alry; when there are always rooms that are flooded with sunshine; and when, no matter in what part of the house one may be hard at work, the eyes can always gimpse the wide outdoors through a window near at hand, there is never a feeling of being cramped and shut away from the rest of the world.

Both the house above and the house below come through with flying colours on the score of windows. The former has a beautiful corner window in the living room at the front, and wide window space at the back of the room where the dining space is located. Every bedroom is on a corner, with a window on each side, and there are two windows in the kitchen.

The second house provides a large picture window in the living room, and a bay for the dining room, which also has a window at the side. The first floor bedroom and the kitchen, both corner rooms, have two windows spiece. Upstairs, which can be left unfinished till needed, a big front bedroom has four windows, another possible bedroom one at the side, and four other windows brighten other parts of the floor.

Cleveland. Despite what the little woman says, men don't conserve their energy as much as women do.

Dr Howard B. Sprague, heart specialist from the Harvard University medical school, told the Cleveland Heart Society the girls know how to take things easy better than the men. Sprague also said the skinny men stand better chances of escaping heart attacks than their plump brothers, and that the less muscular male is likely to outlive the well-padded lifeguard. It takes less work, Dr Sprague said, to pump blood to a skinny or non-muscular person than it does to handle supplies for a larger, body, whether it be large from fat or muscle.—United Press.

FINAL CAMES TOMORROW IN SENIOR LOOP QUALIFYING ROUND

BY "STARDUST"

Tomorrow marks the official termination of the Senior Loop qualifying round and, with the exception of several postponed' fixtures, most teams will complete their schedule. At this crucial stage of the pennant campaign, the race for a play-off berth is still wide open with as many as five clubs crowding the rail in the desperate spurt to the wire.

St. Joseph's, the Jaguars, and Frank Cleary's Americans are assured of playoff berths or a chance to tie for a playoff spot, but, the Championship aspirations of the other contenders, will hinge on the outcome of tomorrow's big games.

Two decisive tussies are slated for decision tomorrow. At noon, the USS "Salisbury Sound" take on the Madcaps in a replay of their regulation drawn game which was halted in the eighth stanza with the score deadlocked at 4-all. A win for either side would see them in the play-offs.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Nice Hold-Up Play Gets Little Credit

THY WILLIAM E. MOKENNEY

TO women play bridge as well U as men? Every time I appear on a radio programme the interviewer asks me that question. It is my opnion that women get more fun out of bridge tifan men do. The popularity of the game is increasing tremendously and there will be many more bridge parties this winter than ever before. Many men will reneg on playing bridge because they saw there are too many arguments. Yet, strangely enough. I have seen a foursome of women with one discussing polities, another giving her favourite recipe for chocolate cake, the third talking about her children and the fourth going on about her business and making a terrific play,

This happened in a social game in Gatlinburg, Tena. The king of spades was opened by West. If South had won this trick with the ace and then led a diamond;

(she has to guess whether to play a diamond or a club) West parlour. would win, return another spade, and East would have the ace of clubs to get in with. But South dld not win the first trick. She played the four-spot from dummy and let West's king hold the trick. West (all the time talking politics) continued with the five of spades and now de--clarer played the ace from dummy and led a diamond, West winning. Having no more spades, West shifted to a hearf. Declarer went right up with dummy's ace and then played a club, East winning and leading back a spade. Declarer won with the queen, and now she had nine tricks-two spades, a heart, three diamonds and three clubs.

When the hand was over, West continued to talk politics; East got to the point of frosting her chocolate cake. None of the ladies not even North (who was still busy with her children's problems); congratulated South upon the execution of a beautiful hold-up play,

Oh! Do you want me to say whother women play bridge as well as men? Sorry, I have no sopinion on this subject,

UNITELLIGENCE TEST RENDEZVOUS

By T. O. HARE OUR rendezvous is the Blue Boar," said Leggitt. He and his two friends were just leaving the Gryphon at liazzbury. Three perfectly straight roads meet at the Gryphon. One goes to the Blue Boar; one to the Livard at Mouse Hill; and the third to the White Owl, a hostelry ocated-on-the-road-taise-perfectly straight) which connects the Blue Boar and the Lizard, Leggitt was proposing to cover, on foot, the 25 miles to the Blue Boar, He is no mean pedestrian. Of his friends, Magneto, in a car, was pro-posing to drive to the Lizard and thence direct to the rendezvous; Crankshaft, cyclist, was proceeding by way of the White Owl.

All three maintained a uniform speed; Magneto went live times as fast as Leggitt and Crankshaft twice as fast, When Magneto reached Lizard, Leggitt had done just 13 miles. All three reached the Blue Boar within a few seconds of one another. How far from the rendezvous reached the White Owl?

Galbraith YOUR BURTHDAY...

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4

TF you are born today, you have a tremendous store of nervous energy and are inclined to work by fits and starts. Your concentration can be very high for a period and you will get a prodigious amount of work done. Then you will let down and do nothing for a while until prodded into getting started again. Just don't wait, always, for someone to prod you! Learn to become self-propelling if you want to reach the heights of success. You have the abilities,

You have a deep and abiding interest in the mysterious and the occult. It is likely that you will make a study of this at some time in your life. You might even wish to travel in the Orient. In addition, there is a very practical streak in your nature. You have a surprising talent for money-making and seem to know how to increase your capital. Given even a small beginning, you ought to be able to accumulate p.m. considerable wealth during your lifetime,

On the other hand, you are interested in the cultural pursuits which—as a rule—are not apt to be highly remuneralive. However, you seem able to do better than most and since you will be happlest in some type of work involving the arts, it would be well for you to get the proper training. You might be successful as a producer, editor, or a concert manager.
